

Dr. Stuart J. Birnbaum

Dr. Stuart J. Birnbaum is Co-Leader of the San Antonio Chapter of the Citizens' Climate Lobby, an international grassroots environmental group that trains and supports volunteers to build relationships with their elected representatives in order to influence climate legislation. Worldwide the organization reports its membership at approximately 180,000 members in 590 chapters. Its views are unabashedly pro-environment, but it seeks to gain influence by adhering to and presenting evidence that is scientifically sound.

An emeritus professor in the Department of Geological Sciences at UTSA, Dr. Birnbaum is also a board member of the Scenic Loop – Helotes Creek Alliance, a local environmental organization, and an En-ROADS ambassador with Climate Interactive. He is also currently on the board of the Trinity Glen Rose Groundwater Conservation District.

As a UTSA faculty member, Dr. Birnbaum conducted research in sedimentology and microbial geochemistry. He earned his B.S. degree in geology from the State University of New York at Stony Brook and his Ph.D. from Cambridge University in the United Kingdom.
